

Ensuring High-Quality Care at Critical Access Hospitals

Critical Access Hospitals (CAH) deliver vital healthcare services to their communities. While your CAH may not be required to have additional advanced practice professionals or specialists on staff, there are many benefits to having locum tenens augment your workforce.

Locums Tenens Benefits to Critical Access Hospitals:

- Fill a critical need: Sourcing temporary or permanent replacements for core team members can be a lengthy process for critical access facilities. Locum tenens fill a critical need to maintain your patient base while allowing you to spend the appropriate time and due diligence in finding the ideal replacement.
- Prevent provider burnout: Even the most dedicated providers can experience burnout. Consider inserting a recurring locum provider into your existing schedule – whether it’s weekend call coverage or every other week – to prevent burnout of your permanent physicians and provide respite care.
- Expand your services: Your community’s health requirements change over time and you may need to offer additional specialty care to meet those critical demands. Recurring locums help to expand the healthcare services delivered in your community whether it be OB/GYN, orthopedics, urology, etc. and build a patient base for these new services.
- Generate income: Perhaps you think your CAH can’t afford to utilize locum tenens. Simply put, your hospital can’t afford NOT to. With the Qualivis program, all revenue generated by the locum provider stays at the hospital; whether generated in the clinic, inpatient or surgical setting. Hospitals designate their pricing, and we collaborate with you and the providers to find the best fit for everyone.

Whether your CAH needs one shift or ongoing coverage, there is no minimum or maximum assignment lengths. Our credentialing and compliance team will enroll your locums with local payors during the privileging process. Also, if you extend a permanent placement offer to a locum, Qualivis has pre-negotiated conversion terms that save hospitals thousands in fees!

We believe access to subcontractors should be easy.

With the click of a button, all Qualivis members have access to our large, highly vetted network of partner agencies. We work closely with our accountable suppliers to staff advanced practitioners and physicians. These agencies deliver solutions through the Qualivis platform while you maintain:

- One point of contact
- One account manager
- One source for enterprise-level reporting and analytics
- One bill
